Text:

This team forced the Appraisal Team to confront uncomfortable topics from the beginning to the end of their skit. The team's Presentation made us feel like we were immersed in a life of the family members who were exposed to the domestic violence that so many people are experience daily.

The team took the real-life experience of a team member and decided to talk in public about the shame, violence, and fear of domestic violence. The poem that was cited by the victim left an everlasting impression in our minds.

The courage that the victim found to escape the situation was present in the Presentation, while skit provided the team a space to educate others about domestic violence and how to escape.

This team created a Presentation based on pollution and climate change. The team's prop effects were truly outstanding, and culminated in a "trash" explosion out of a giant blue whale's blowhole. The team's massive props and costumes were all intricately detailed and well co-ordinated. The team ended their dynamic performance with a deeply passionate speech about how "Together, we can change that!" which brought a few tears of pride to the team members and audience.

Text:

Using multiple traditional Chinese art styles, this team constructed and painted four intricate giant fans that started out closed and mechanically unfurled as the team journeyed to find pieces of beauty in the world. Using a small motor, the fans unfolded, unveiling beautiful representations of five regions of the world. These regions ranged from the snowy tops of the frigid mountains to the scorching hot African savanna and from a lush, expansive prairie to a small, rustic village. The final fan turned itself around to reveal that beauty and courage were within them all along.

For: This team showed cohesion from start to end, helping a nervous teammate and trusting one another in Instant Challenge.

Text:

This award is given for supportive and honest teamwork. This team had an obvious special bond the moment they walked in the room. A team member was shaking with nerves and one of his teammates helped calm him down with a short breathing exercise. It was apparent that they cared about each other's wellbeing in such a tense environment. They went through their challenge with ease and genuine teamwork, never questioning each other along the way. They had a choice to make when they finished but still had time left in the Challenge. One team member told the team that they had successfully solved the Challenge. Without missing a beat, the rest of the team, with an unspoken connection, called time. It was a rare and beautiful sight to see such honest and authentic cooperation and cohesion on a team in Instant Challenge. It was clear they weren't just a team -- they were a family.

Text:
This team created a buzz among the Appraisers and left them breathless from the intricacy of their solution. They used 600 individually braided straws and other recyclable materials to create a reversible costume that allowed the actor to switch between his "good" bee side and "evil" ant side. The team also used recyclable materials to create a pair of jeans out of melted plastic knives. Then, dressed in their elaborate costumes, two of the three team members spent less than 45 seconds of their Presentation on the ground; they spent the rest of their time acrobatically climbing across their multi-level set, twisting and turning the pieces into a log, tree, waterfall, flower pots, mushroom, sunflower, spider web, and other elements of an insect garden.

For: Despite being former competitors and living hours apart, this team created a truly memorable donut-inspired Presentation

Text:

Even though they lived hours apart, this team created an unforgettable Presentation involving donut-inspired engineering. The team created a donut monster, that upon triggering, appeared in an explosion of lights and donuts. The team also created a functioning waterwheel that ushered donuts down a pool and made coffee.

The team was able to accomplish this while living over two hours apart! They communicated through skype and video chat to confirm details of their props and technical elements. They built, assembled, shipped, and confirmed their details all before coming together at tournaments. Despite these challenges, their props were amazingly uniform and functioned perfectly together. This was made all the more memorable, as team members were former competitors who met at a previous Global Finals tournament. One member was losing her team and was invited to join the others.

This was truly one of the most memorable performances seen by the Appraisers.

For: When the ghost of a lumberjack gets stuck in a tree, the only thing to do is split it open.

Text:

The Ultimate Lumberjacks astounded the Appraisal Team when they rolled a tree that was six feet tall and ten feet wide into the Launch Area. The tree was constructed using chicken wire, paper mache, and real tree branches. Because the tree housed the ghost of a lumberjack, the tree was constructed with an intricately designed face equipped with eyes that glowed red when the Special Effect was triggered. To announce the freeing of the ghostly lumberjack, the top of the tree split open through the use of levers, pulleys, and K*Nex. When the tree split open, a balloon was automatically popped, confetti flew, and the tree's eyes turned on. The team engineered the prop so that when the balloon burst, the spring-loaded arms relaxed and unleashed the monster hidden within its trunk. The engineering that was utilized to allow the tree to split open was impressive in its straightforward design and produced a dramatic effect.

Out of the tons of technical solutions possible, this team struck out to wow the audience with basic physics. The simple aircraft of balsa wood, paper, and Ping-Pong balls achieved Flight by floating above pressurized nitrogen. The controlled Flight of the Aircraft led to a team drop mechanism triggered by a dual switch system. The switches first stored nitrogen and then released it in a quick burst to spill the tea (bag Payload). The team included a vented backstop to the air burst to ensure the Payload was not swept back by the residual flow, but dropped directly down the paper release of the Aircraft. Congratulations on a beautiful solution.

As impressive as this set was, it wasn't the only award worthy element this duo presented. An enormous baby towered over the stage and was as big as it was terrifying. As impactful as the baby was from the outside, its inner workings were seamless, complex, and elegant. It utilized a single power source to operate a cam lobe. This allowed the baby to come to life in a myriad of ways and gave Appraisers a Double vision into the main character's body. The audience was enthralled and when the baby's jaw dropped, so did ours.

This team brought to life the effects of gambling addiction with a dazzling technical display and giant brain prop.

Text:

From the moment their enormous simulated brain and face props appeared on the stage, this team showed the Appraisers just how innovative (and big) their brains are. Demonstrating exceptional attention to detail, they used elements of mechanical engineering, physics, hydraulics, computer science, electrical and structural engineering to create a functional slot machine and giant face and brain to illustrate the effects of gambling addiction. The slot machine Game Gizmo transformed twice during the performance from an entirely mechanical machine with gears and chains to a fully-modern electronic system with multi-colored LED lights and magnets to control the stopping of the wheels. The large-scale face and brain not only showed emotion, but also physically demonstrated the long-term effects of gambling addiction including red eyes, the rush of dopamine simulated with hydraulics, and LEDs used to simulate the firing of neuro-processors.
